

Submission for NTC Consultation RIS - Developing technology-neutral road rules for driver distraction

5 July 2019

I have been driving for nearly 47 years now and have used mobile phones whilst driving without touching them. I can also say that I never had an accident in all those years, no claims, could have saved a fortune on insurance

I always had a hands free set.

A federal regulation would be great as all States appear to have their own which does not help.

Rules should be simple, no phones at the front of the car. Modern cars have hands free which are voice activated. It is not illegal to talk. I can even get my car to read a text message and reply to one by talking.

All phones on bag seat (mine is in my briefcase on back seat) and works fine.
